INTER-UNIVERSITY SEMINAR ON ARMED FORCES AND SOCIETY

2009 BIENNIAL INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

23 - 25 October
The Palmer House Hilton
Chicago, Illinois    USA
Welcome to the 2009 Biennial International Conference of the Inter-University Seminar on Armed Forces and Society, held on the 49th year of our founding by Morris Janowitz. The scholarship presented here is of exceptionally high quality and deals with the most important issues of military professionalism and relations between the military and society. This is an excellent time to renew old acquaintances, make new ones, and, if you are not yet a Fellow of the IUS, to join us. The registration staff will be happy to assist you with this.

At our banquet on Friday evening, we will present the Morris Janowitz Career Achievement Award to two distinguished IUS Fellows, James Burk and Bernard Boëne. They join previous Janowitz Award recipients Sam C. Sarkesian, Charles C. Moskos, David R. Segal, and Moshe Lissak. Our keynote speaker will be John A. Nagl, President of the Center for a New American Security and author of Learning to Eat Soup with a Knife: Counterinsurgency Lessons from Malaya and Vietnam. His insights are frequently sought in the highest echelons of government.

In addition to our regular panels, there are several roundtables, including ones honoring the late Charles C. Moskos and discussing how the 21st century enemy is conceptualized. Cadets from the United States Military and Air Force Academies and the Royal Military College of Canada and ROTC and NROTC cadets and midshipmen from the Chicago area, many of whom are assisting with registration, join us for the conference. This year we also feature two sessions focused on their scholarship. I know you will enjoy meeting these future leaders of their nations’ armed forces and encouraging them in their scholarly interests.

This year’s Conference is also notable in that there are many rising scholars presenting their work, including a number of graduate students. We encourage them to join the IUS as Student Fellows and urge faculty members to subsidize the minimal Fellowship fees of their best students. Please encourage scholars at all levels to become IUS Fellows and to submit their work to Armed Forces & Society, the premier journal in our field.

I thank you for your participation in our Conference and for your support of our organization. IUS Fellows form an interdisciplinary and international college of scholars dedicated to the highest standards of social science research on issues of the armed forces and society. Please let us know at the Secretariat (secretariat@iusafs.org) or contact me personally (jwillia@luc.edu) if we can be of professional assistance to you. Meanwhile, I look forward to seeing you at the conference sessions, the Banquet, and the President’s Reception Saturday evening.

BERNARD BOËNE

Bernard Boëne has been instrumental in the renaissance of military sociology in Europe. He has helped shaped a generation of French officers, first as professeur agrégé of English, then of Sociology, and finally as Dean at the École Spéciale Militaire de Saint-Cyr (ESM) and the other military schools at Coëtquidan, as well as teaching at the universities of Rennes and Toulouse. The capstone of his career as an educator was service as Recteur de l’Académie de La Réunion.

Bernard Boëne’s research includes his 1995 dissertation on the development of military sociology in the United States, the published version of which is required reading for military sociologists. His other seminal publications cover the range of issues in military sociology, and have been published in books and in the major journals in our field. One of his latest projects is a new electronic journal in military sociology.

His scholarly service includes being Associate Editor of Armed Forces & Society, a member of the IUS Council, Vice-President of the Research Committee on Armed Forces and Conflict Resolution of the International Sociological Association, and President of the European Research Group on the Military and Society (ERGOMAS).

JAMES BURK

James Burk is a leading figure in military sociology whose research examines the military in liberal democracies. His publications have engaged and shaped sociological debates about the use of force, the citizen-soldier, the military profession, military culture, and theories of civil-military relations.

He is especially concerned with issues that lie on the frontier between sociology and ethics, such as the military obligations of citizens and the line between blind and responsible obedience. His recent research examines patterns of race relations within the military through the prism of local justice theory.

Burk studied military sociology under Morris Janowitz while a graduate student at the University of Chicago and has long been active in the Inter-University Seminar on Armed Forces and Society. He has served on the IUS Council since 1991 and chairs its publications committee. He edited Armed Forces & Society from 1995 to 1998 and remains an active member of the journal’s editorial board. He is a professor of sociology at Texas A&M University, specializing in military sociology, political sociology and social theory.

He is also a member of the Defense Policy Board, a Visiting Professor in the War Studies Department at Kings College of London, a life member of the Council on Foreign Relations and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and a member of the International Institute of Strategic Studies. Dr. Nagl is a member of the Joint Force Quarterly Advisory Committee and of the Advisory Board of the Journal of the Royal United Services Institute, a former Young Leader of the French-American Foundation and the American Council on Germany, and a member of the American Association of Rhodes Scholars.

Dr. Nagl was a Distinguished Graduate of the United States Military Academy Class of 1988 and served as an armor officer in the U.S. Army for 20 years, retiring with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. His last military assignment was as commander of the 1st Battalion, 34th Armor at Fort Riley, Kansas, training Transition Teams that embedded with Iraqi and Afghan units. He led a tank platoon in Operation Desert Storm and served as the operations officer of a tank battalion task force in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

He earned his doctorate from Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar, and taught national security studies at West Point’s Department of Social Sciences and in Georgetown University’s Security Studies Program. He served as a Military Assistant to two Deputy Secretaries of Defense and later worked as a Senior Fellow at the Center for a New American Security. Nagl also earned a Master of the Military Arts and Sciences Degree from the Command and General Staff College, where he received the George C. Marshall Award as the top graduate. He was awarded the Combat Action Badge by General James Mattis of the United States Marine Corps, under whose leadership he fought in Al Anbar in 2004.

Dr. Nagl is the author of Learning to Eat Soup with a Knife: Counterinsurgency Lessons from Malaya and Vietnam, and was on the writing team that produced the U.S. Army/Marine Corps Counterinsurgency Field Manual. He has also been published in the New York Times, Washington Post, the Wall Street Journal, Foreign Policy, Parameters, Military Review, Joint Force Quarterly, Armed Forces Journal, the Washington Quarterly, and Democracy, among others. He was profiled in the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times Magazine. If you are not yet a Fellow of the Inter-University Seminar on Armed Forces and Society, we welcome your interest and invite you to join. Please speak with a senior staff member at the Conference Registration area.

Our dues are reasonable, and there are several options available, including two and three-year reduced rates, life membership, and student dues.

New Fellows’ dues accepted on site during the course of the Conference will be applied to 2010 (and onward if you elect to remit more than a single year’s fee at this time). Payment can be made by credit card, check or in cash.

Fellowship benefits include discounted registration fees at IUS Conferences, a subscription to the quarterly Armed Forces & Society, recognized as the premier journal in the field, on-line access to SAGE Publications’ full-text journals in Sociology and Political Science -- and affiliation with a worldwide network of professionals who share your interests.
