Welcome to the 2017 International Conference of the Inter-University Seminar on Armed Forces and Society, held on the 57th year of our founding by Morris Janowitz. The scholarship presented here is of exceptionally high quality and deals with the most important issues of military professionalism and relations between the military and society. This is an excellent time to renew old acquaintances, make new ones, and, if you are not yet a Fellow of the IUS, to join us. The registration staff will be happy to assist you with this.

As always, this conference has many rising scholars presenting their work, including a number of graduate students. We encourage them to join the IUS as Student Fellows and urge faculty members to subsidize the minimal Fellowship fees of their best students. Please encourage scholars at all levels to become IUS Fellows and to submit their work to Armed Forces & Society, the premier journal in our field.

We thank you for your participation in our Conference and for your support of our organization. IUS Fellows form an interdisciplinary and international college of scholars dedicated to the highest standards of social science research on issues of the armed forces and society. Please let us know at the Secretariat (secretariat@iusafs.org) if we can be of professional assistance to you.

Professor Hans Joas is a sociologist widely known and highly respected for his studies of social theory, pragmatism, social action, religion, changing values, and the study of war and violence.

Professor Joas received his diploma in sociology in 1972 from the Free University of Berlin where he was a research and teaching fellow in the Department of Sociology. He completed his PhD in 1979 and his Habilitation in 1981, while he was a Research Fellow at the Max Planck Institute for Human Development and Education and a Visiting Professor at the University of Tubingen. He is presently the Ernst-Troeltsch Professor for the Study of Religious Sociology at the Humboldt University of Berlin and a Visiting Professor of Sociology and a member of the Committee on Social Thought at the University of Chicago.

Hans is a prolific researcher. In English alone, he has published ten books, edited nine more, and published well over one hundred journal articles or book chapters. He has published more than this in his native German, with a great number published or translated into one of seventeen other languages. The value of his work is indicated by the many awards he has received over the course of his career: the Rene Konig Prize from the German Sociological Association, the Bielefeld Luhmann Prize, the Weiner Heisenberg Medal from the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation, the Hans Killian Prize and the Max Planck Research Award. In addition, he has received honorary doctorates from the University of Tubingen and from Uppsala University in Sweden.

Of note for the fellows of IUS, gathered here tonight, is the work Hans has done to advance the study of war and modernity, social theories about war and peace, and human rights.
Rene Moelker

René Moelker received his masters degree in sociology from the Catholic University in Brabant in 1986 and his doctorate from the Erasmus University in Rotterdam in 1992. He served for two years on the faculty of the Netherlands Naval Academy. In 1994, he was appointed to and currently serves on the faculty of the Netherlands Defense Academy, where he has proven to be a leader in teaching and research, both within his institution and within the wider profession of military sociologists.

Moelker is a prolific scholar. He has over 100 publications, including most recently over ten books or edited books and over twenty book chapters and peer-reviewed journal articles. These publications cover a wide-range of substantive matters dealing amongst others with the theory and methods of military sociology, with military organization and moral responsibility for the use of force, and with the effects of military service on military families. The main question that he addresses asks how military force can be used responsibly, to care for the lives and wellbeing of soldiers, veterans, and civilians caught up in the experience of collective violence. His current work is a comparative ethnographic study of veterans in the USA and the Netherlands.

In addition, Rene contributes to build the professional organizations on which we depend to do our work. He is a member of the Council of IUS and a member of the editorial board of our journal Armed Forces and Society. He has served as the acting president of the European Research Group on Military and Society (ERGOMAS), is currently treasurer of ERGOMAS, and secretary of its working group on military families. He also sits on the editorial board of Res Militares.

Patricia Shields

Pat Shields received a bachelor’s degree in economics from the University of Maryland in 1973 and a masters’ in economics in 1975 and PhD in public administration in 1977 from The Ohio State University. She has been a member of the Department of Political Science at Texas State University since 1978. There she directed the Masters of Public Administration Program for 18 years. Pat has been recognized for her teaching and scholarship at the state and national level.

Pat Shields has published four books and over 60 book chapters and peer-reviewed journal articles. She has long studied the interface between society and military. This began with an examination of the equity of the US recruitment process during the Vietnam War, which was published in Armed Forces & Society in 1980. Other topics include gender and minority integration, civil military relations, military sociology, peacekeeping, and privatization. She is also known for applying the philosophy of pragmatism to research methods, public administration, public finance, peacekeeping, peace studies and military strategy.

Pat has been engaged in professional service serving on the council and accrediting body for the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration. She has served on the editorial board of six journals and on the IUS council. Her service as Editor-in-Chief of Armed Forces & Society began in 2001.

Armed Forces and Conflict Resolution
If you are not yet a Fellow of the Inter-University Seminar on Armed Forces and Society, we welcome your interest and invite you to join. Please speak with a senior staff member at the Conference Registration area.

Our dues are reasonable, and there are several options available, including two and three-year reduced rates, life fellowship, and student dues.

New Fellows’ dues accepted on site during the course of the Conference will be applied to 2017 (and onward if you elect to remit more than a single year’s fee at this time). Payment can be made by credit card, check or in cash.

Fellowship benefits include discounted registration fees at IUS Conferences, a subscription to the quarterly Armed Forces & Society, recognized as the premier journal in the field, on-line access to SAGE Publications’ full-text journals in Sociology and Political Science -- and affiliation with a worldwide network of professionals who share your interests.
